

Engaging All Who Enter the Church to Worship

Valley Forge, PA – Church is changing and the concept of ministry is broadening beyond preaching, singing, evangelism, and missions. In the attempt to retain and gain members, churches are becoming not only socially warmer but ever more sensitive to the quality of the welcome they extend. This is the basis for The Work of the Greeter, the newest book in the Judson Press “Work of the Church” series.

In The Work of the Greeter, author Paige Lanier Chargois begins with scriptural expectations and the historical basis for this ministry, and then considers cultural and social changes that influence its dynamics. The book then provides every possible detail to assist the reader in the organization of the work of greeters, including launching a new greeters’ ministry, sustaining one, or revamping what’s been developed.

In developing this valuable new resource, Chargois sought the expertise of churches across the nation concerning their greeters’ organization. Among the churches which shared their experiences were:

- Willow Creek Community Church, South Barrington, IL
- Lakewood Church, Houston, TX
- The Potter’s House, Dallas, TX
- Saddleback Community Church, Lake Forest, CA
- New Birth MBC, Lithonia, GA
- Trinity United Church of Christ, Chicago, IL

Finally, The Work of the Greeter includes a training module for churches, and Chargois is available as a training leader. To contact the author, call (804) 261-6501, send email to paicharg@aol.com, or write to 1711 Bellevue Avenue, DP16, Richmond, VA 23227.
